Why Peace Has Not Been Concluded. In Harvey's Weekly for this week there is a cartoon portraying President Wilson in civillan attire decorated upon the left sleeve of his frock Behind the superficially humorous inson of exceedingly serious import to every citizen of the United States.

It is exactly six months yesterday since President Wilson arrived in France on his self-appointed mission. For haif a year now he has abandoned the duties which he was elected to perform, and which he swore to perform when he took the oath of office, and has devoted his energies and the taxpayers' money to an attempt to delay peace until he could merge American sovereignty in a newfangled world government unknown to our experience, our traditions, our principles and our Constitution. One eighth of the President's entire term of office has now been spent in this voluntary enterprise.

Every intelligent observer in every civilized country on the planet's surface knows that since President Witson reached Paris six months ago the main purpose of his efforts has not been to effect a speedy peace would send our troops home and reestablish normal conditions in America but to make impossible any peace that does not include the establishment of his self-conceived league and fluid system of world reorganization recognizes his relation to the long delay of peace. The President himself avowed it when, on the occusion of his brief visit to the United States during the last days of February and the first days of March, he defiantly, we were almost about to say impudently, notified the Congress and the people of his fixed intention. "When that treaty comes back," he said in New York on March 4, "gentlemen on this side will find the covemant not only in it but so many threads of the treaty tied to the covenant that you cannot dissect the covepant from the treaty without destroying the whole vital structure. The conference will have an opportunity of bringing to a final settlement the position of the Turk in Europe and at the same time the definite marking of the long disputed boundaries between Bulgaria and Greece. That the line of Greece shall be carried eastward in Thrace to the advance to the Bosporus shall be halted on the present frontier of Bulgaria is a contention of Premier VENTERIOS that it is believed will be accepted at Paris.

Following the examination of a number of savings bank officials yesterday by the joint legislative committee on the housing problem Senator Charles G. Lockwood of Kings, chairman, announced that the problem of providing funds for the immediate crection of dwallings throughout the city is in a fair way of being solved. Several bank officials who testified were willing to pleage definite amounts available for loans on home mortgages without laying the matter before their directors, but Senator Lockwood announced that the committee has received pleages of $26.000, About $75,800,000 is needed.
